Te Whakamāmā i te Kāwanatanga ā-Rohe Simplifying Local Government

The Government is considering major changes to how local councils work across New Zealand. It's one of the biggest potential shifts in decades, aimed at simplifying the system and improving how services are delivered.

Last month, Northland councils sought community feedback, which is now helping shape our region's approach. All four councils are working together at pace to explore options for a Northland-led proposal under the Government's "Head Start" pathway, due in early August.

We are considering a range of possible options, which are focused on achieving better outcomes for Northland while reflecting our geography, community needs, and relationships, including with our tangata whenua partners.

You can learn more at www.nrc.govt.nz/slg

If the Government progresses our proposal, there will be further opportunities for our communities to have their say.
